EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT

1. An examiner's amendment to the record appears below. Should the changes and/or additions be unacceptable to applicant, an amendment may be filed as provided by 37 CFR 1.312. To ensure consideration of such an amendment, it MUST be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee.

The application has been amended as follows:

In the preliminary amendment dated December 12, 2003, on page 1 of the specification, change the inserted sentence as follows:

After "August 14, 2001," insert the phrase, "now abandoned,"

REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The prior art of record fails to teach and/or suggest a lithium secondary battery having a non-aqueous electrolytic solution having a two separate compounds included in the solution, wherein one compound is oxidized at a voltage higher than a charge end voltage of the battery and the other compound inhibits reactions at voltages lower than the charge end voltage of the battery. The prior art of record fails to teach the combination of compounds being utilized in the electrolytic solution.

The prior art inventions disclose that aromatic compounds are known to be used to inhibit overcharging of the battery, but have a disadvantage in that the cycle characteristics deteriorate. The prior art also discloses the use of fluorinated ethers and esters for the purpose of preventing hazards such as explosion and ignition due to elevated temperatures caused by heating, overcharging and internal short circuits in lithium secondary batteries. The prior art, however, does not show the combination of a fluorinated ether or ester compound (to improve the storage characteristic) and an aromatic compound (to inhibit overcharging for the battery) in the electrolytic solution to improved the over all safety and storage characteristics of the battery. The addition of solvents into an electrolytic solution typically affects the performance and safety requirements of a lithium secondary battery and one would not be motivated to combine just any two solvents together and therefore, without specific motivation, one having ordinary skill in the art would not combine the prior art solvents together to achieve applicants instant invention.

The prior art further fails to teach and/or suggest a method for fabricating a lithium secondary battery using the electrolytic solution with the above combination solvent system or an electrical appliance utilizing the lithium secondary battery having the above electrolytic solution with combination solvent system.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
